

New FDA analysis finds lead in all 400 lipstick products tested

Tony Isaacs (mercola.com)

See all articles by this author

The full list of lipsticks tested and manufacturers can be viewed at: <http://www.fda.gov>

Though the FDA maintains that the amounts of lead found are not dangerous, their site does note "Although we do not believe that the lead content found in our recent lipstick analyses poses a safety concern, we are evaluating whether there may be a need to recommend an upper limit for lead in lipstick in order to further protect the health and welfare of consumers."

Sources for this article include:

<http://naturalsociety.com>

<http://www.fda.gov>

http://www.naturalnews.com/029093\_lipstick\_lead.html

<http://safecosmetics.org/article.php?id=954>

